Delano, youngest daughter of General James Denny, who died in June, 1875. Subsequently he married Miss Josie Pearce of Lancaster who lived a number of years after his death.

Of his death in 1881, The Herald commented: "A never failing fund of pleasant reminiscences made his society a pleasure and profit, and his loss one not to be supplied."

That the C. and M. V. Railway car bridge, west of the falls, fell eight inches on April 16, 1881 when a bottom chord in the west side of the structure broke while an eastbound freight was passing through it. It was only a miracle, newspapers of the time record, that the bridge did not crash into the Scioto river carrying with it the train. The bridge was badly sprung as a result of the mishap but it was quickly repaired and put into service two days later.

Several spokesmen, reported to be representing the strikers, appeared in the Fayette-co city with the warning, it was said.

Trucks operated by Mr. Kirk have been attacked several times in the past week with drivers narrowly escaping injury. Armed guards have been assigned the trucks.

They were met at Harrisburg by two loads of Franklin-co deputies and conveyed to the packing plant, after which the convoy accompanied the trucks on the return. Sheriff Icenhower and deputies made the round trip.

Not only are the trucks conveyed by armed guards with machine guns and other weapons meant to handle a riotous situation, but each truck driver, starting Thursday, is carrying a gun, with instructions to use it in self defense if occasion demanded.

Did You Know
By Pat J. Kirwin

THAT William B. Renick, ancestor of Mrs. J. I. Smith, S. Court-st., and Miss Elizabeth Renick, E. Union-st., was the oldest living cattle drover in the United States at the time of his death in May, 1881.

Mr. Renick was the grandson of William Renick, who served as surveyor general of the Virginia Military Lands under Lord Fairfax, a character closely associated with the early life of George Washington. The eldest of a family of three sons and three daughters, Renick was born in Chillicothe in 1804. His father was George Renick.

George Renick came to Ohio with his three brothers from Virginia in 1797. The elder Renick became interested in the breeding and raising of cattle and within a few short years, with his brother Felix, came to be recognized throughout the country as a cattle expert.

His son, William, the subject of this sketch entered actively into his father's business before he was 16, and from that time on was an extensive farmer, engaging chiefly in the raising of cattle for eastern markets. In 1832 he built the beautiful country home in Pickaway-twp now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Young.

A short time later he brought the first drove of Texas cattle to Ohio. This occurred in a day when an adequate means of transporting the stock was unknown. The cattle were driven from place to place. In 1820, then a lad of 16, Renick accompanied his father in a trip across the Allegheny Mountains.

RENICK is credited with being the inventor of the system of turnpikes which were the "highway" during the era of the 1870's, '80's, and '90's. He personally supervised the construction of the Columbus-Portsmouth Turnpike, now an important section of Route 23. Turnpikes were constructed by local companies and paid for by the use of toll fees.

He was a staunch Republican, keenly interested in the principles of the party. He was a frequent contributor to current publications on matters of practical agriculture, national finance, and early local history many of which were combined in a volume he completed shortly before his death.

Renick was married three times. His first wife was Jane Starling Boggs, whom he married May 8, 1827. Their only child a son, died in 1855. In 1846 he married Mrs. Sarah B. Easter is more than a nature amount of damage to orchards in bloom. Easter is more, it is the celebration of the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the grave. Death could not hold Him. The Son of God with power. Before that took place men had a strong hope of immortality. Now that hope has become assurance. Jesus says,

"Because I live, ye shall live also."
Without the resurrection fact there

THE MEANING OF EASTER

Easter has a multitude of messages and meanings. First there is nature's festival. The sun daily reaches further north with its life-giving and revivify-ing rays and spring is upon us. From prehistoric times men have celebrated their spring festivals.

Easter, however, means much more than this. To the Christian it spells the triumph of life over death in the realm of the spirit. This is the day that celebrates Christ's triumph over death.

Easter is the birthday of the world's hope. It is the anniversary of the day on which Christ brought life and immortality to light. What men had always hoped for, He demonstrated. To the Christian death is not the lengthening of shadows at the end of day but the brightening of the horizon that presages a golden dawn. The religion of Jesus is primarily a religion of life. The radiance that streams from the open tomb fills all the world with light. THE CHURCH INVITES YOU TO ITS SERVICES EASTER SUNDAY.

Easter Symbols

A number of unusual customs have arisen among peasant folk in their celebration of Easter.

Some of the most unusual have to do with the Easter egg. Long before the coming of Christ the egg had been used in festivals of ancient times as the emblem of the universe. Early Christians, noting the incubation of a living creature from an apparently lifeless egg, made the egg a symbol of the resurrection. They had entered like all orthodox Jews. When they accepted Christianity, they transferred the custom of eating eggs to Easter celebrations.

Legend tells of an unmenegg that fell from heaven to the Euphrates. Doves descended and hatched it. Out of the egg emerged a lovely goddess, Easter.

The worship of this goddess was carried to what is now England

THE MEANING OF EASTER

Easter has a multitude of messages and meanings. First there is nature's festival. The sun daily reaches further north with its life-giving and revivifying rays and spring is upon us. From prehistoric times men have celebrated their spring festivals.

Easter, however, means much more than this. To the Christian it spells the triumph of life over death in the realm of the spirit. This is the day that celebrates Christ's triumph over death.

Easter is the birthday of the world's hope. It is the anniversary of the day on which Christ brought life and immortality to light. What men had always hoped for, He demonstrated. To the Christian death is not the lengthening of shadows at the end of day but the brightening of the horizon that presages a golden dawn. The religion of Jesus is primarily a religion of life. The radiance that streams from the open tomb fills all the world with light. THE CHURCH INVITES YOU TO ITS SERVICES EASTER SUNDAY.

Professor John Garstang, noted British archaeologist, is reported to have unearthed the earliest example of a plastic art known to Palestine. It is a cult image in clay, believed to have been made about 3000 B. C. and regarded as an object of primary importance.

Methodist leaders have announced that their church is establishing a new conference to be known as the Methodist Episcopal Church of Germany. For half a century this work has been handled as a foreign missionary enterprise, but the activities of the denomination are now to become an independent Protestant unit.

Two billions of copies of the Bible have been issued in a thousand languages by the presses of the Christian world since the invention of the printing press. The circulation has been largely by the Protestant churches.

"The Lord's Acre Plan" is said to be spreading in the South. In lower South Carolina twenty churches are working at it. Sixty thousand acres have been dedicated to the Lord in Georgia. In western North Carolina, the Farmers' Federation has a religious department in charge of Dumont Clarke, a Presbyterian minister. Under his leadership the number of churches interested in the plan has increased from 6 to 200, representing nine denominations in fifteen counties.

Easter Symbols

A number of unusual customs have arisen among peasant folk in their celebration of Easter. Some of the most unusual have to do with the Easter egg. Long before the coming of Christ the egg had been used in festivals of ancient times as the emblem of the universe. Early Christians, noting the incubation of a living creature from an apparently lifeless egg, made the egg a symbol of the resurrection. They had eaten eggs at the Feast of the Passover like all orthodox Jews. When they accepted Christianity, they transferred the custom of eating eggs to Easter celebrations.

Legend tells of an immense egg that fell from heaven to the Euphrates. Doves descended and hatched it. Out of the egg emerged a lovely goddess, Easter. The worship of this goddess was carried to what is now England and each year festivals were held in her honor. Missionaries who brought Christianity to England incorporated this spring festival into a festival of the church and the egg became the symbol of the resurrection of Christ. Coloring eggs was a symbol of the rejoicing associated with the festival.

The Golden Text

John 11:25—"I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live."

In her honor. Missionaries who brought Christianity to England incorporated this spring festival into a festival of the church and the egg became the symbol of the resurrection of Christ. Coloring eggs was a symbol of the rejoicing associated with the festival.

The big question is not whether we are immortal, but whether we are living the sort of life that ought to be immortal. The man who believes he will live on forever is the man who lives best.

The Future Life—(Easter Lesson) ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Matt. 25:31-46; Mark 12:26, 27; Luke 24:1-12; John 14:1-6; I Cor. 15:3-20, 50-58; I Thess. 4:13-18; Rev. 22:1-5.

To teach his disciples the reality of the future life beyond the grave, Jesus reminded them of God's speaking to Moses out of the burning bush: "I am the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob." They had died centuries before and yet they were living still with God.

Our hope of the future life and the resurrection of our own bodies rests chiefly upon Christ's bodily resurrection from the grave and his appearance to his disciples. He first appeared to Mary Magdalene, then to other women and to the apostles.

As the other women came to the tomb they found it empty and saw two angels who said to them, "Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here but is risen." They pushed back to report the glad news to the apostles.

Paul used Christ's resurrection as the proof of the Christian's resurrection, calling him "the first-fruits of them that are asleep." This faith was made clear to John, in a vision of heaven as a place of beauty in the presence of Christ. (GOLDEN TEXT—John 11:25)

4 Central Ohio Bands to In-vade Circleville for Parade, Concert

Circleville will become the metropolis of central Ohio on April 26 when over 200 musicians under the direction of Dr. Grant Connell will take part in the fourth annual band festival.

Bands from Lancaster, Arlington, Bexley and Circleville will take part in this show.

This event will be celebrated with much gusto, beginning with a parade at which the spectators may judge the musical styles, the marching, and the general appearance of the different bands.

The concert to which the public is urged to attend, will be held at the Memorial hall at 8:00 P. M., following a several-hour rehearsal and a dinner by the group. At this entertainment Carl Boggs, of the Circleville band, will play a bass solo.

Jane Littleton will appear in a complete new drum-major regalia.

These band festivals are an incentive for young musicians to improve their work and they also furnish contacts with directors and other students.

The following program as outlined by Mr. Zaenglein will be given at the evening concert: America; march, National Emblem; overture, Morning, Noon, and Night; bass solo, Carl Boggs; march, The Fairest of the Fair; Hungarian Dance No. 6; trumpet solo, Upper Arlington; waltz, Tales From the Vienna Woods; brass quartette, Lancaster; selection, Operatic Gems; trumpet solo, Bexley, Adoration; march, On the Mall; and Stars Spangled Banner.

EASTER DAY
THE GREAT CHRISTIAN FESTIVAL once more centers attention, if only for the day, on the life and the events that Easter commemorates. The world looks back 1,900 years on the life of an obscure Galilean peasant.
What did He do that produced consequences so momentous for mankind? Not a great deal in a material way. But His soul was so on fire with love for his fellowmen, with devotion to a way of life that would establish the kingdom of God on earth, that the fire spread to those with whom He associated, and through them to the world.
While He was in a sense a child of His time, as all must be, there was a universality and timelessness in His soul that gave Him mastery of the ages. Through the centuries that have passed since the tragedy of Golgotha, ardent spirits have drunk of His inspiration and gone out to move vast numbers of people.
"The trouble with Christianity," says Bernard Shaw, "is that it never has been tried." True, the world would not be in its present plight if it had been dominated by His spirit.
The Golden Rule He gave is only a general precept. It has been criticized as affording no real basis in a complex civilization for the settlement of profound domestic and international differences. When both sides believe they are right, how can the admonition, "Whatsoever would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them," help compose the dispute?
Yet the spirit of the Golden Rule, the spirit of generous love and sympathy, would be a universal solvent of problems if it could be sincerely applied.
So Easter day will have value to us if we grasp the ideals it brings to our minds so dramatically; if we see a little more clearly that blind adherence to self-interest in the long-run courts disaster; that salvation for the world as for individuals lies in following the path He laid out so long ago.

EFFICACY OF HAIRBRUSH
OLDSTERS who believe that the fine art of spanking a stubborn, headstrong child has been lost with the advance of years and changing times will no doubt receive with incredulity the information that, far from being lost, it has taken of new aspects of finesse and is now practiced more effectively than ever before.
The truth of the matter is that spanking, in years gone by, when the irate father took the erring youngster out to the woodshed of the barn and laid the rod or whip on with a heavy hand, was a crude and often a cruel performance which embittered the victim and accomplished little in the way of regeneration.
The modern method, in the opinion of Dr. Murphy, specialist in psychology at the University of Pennsylvania, represents a great improvement. In an address Dr. Murphy said that the modern parent who uses the back of a hairbrush as the instrument of punishment spansks scientifically.
The hairbrush, he believes, is more beneficial than the rod or the switch because the child is not hurt unduly and the brush is not damaged. A further testimonial to its efficacy is to be found in the fact that ever since the hairbrush was first invented it has been used by more discriminating parents for this incidental purpose.
Dr. Murphy's contribution of his seasoned opinion to the best thought on a moot and important question will be appreciated by parents who in these difficult days of juvenile independence, are often torn by doubts. The hairbrush it shall be from this time forward.

MISPLACED INDIVIDUALS
THE MISFIT or the subnormal individual has come to be a perplexing problem in today's social structure. In former years, when the pace was not so rapid, and when the pressure of earning a living was not so great, the misfit and the subnormal got along fairly well. Today, however, efficiency has become the keynote, and the individuals who can not keep up with his fellows usually is left by the wayside.
But thousands of persons held to be subnormal are merely wrongly placed in the scheme of things. There are jobs they can do well if they can be found for them. The problem, then, is one of adjustment.
Much work along these lines is being done in the public schools in a number of states and in many cities. Because a child fails in one department of school work is not accepted as final proof that he is subnormal and a complete failure. In something else he may succeed notably. Part of every teacher's duty lies in fitting the work to the child as well as fitting the child to the work.
More failures in the world can be traced to a poor start than to absolute incompetency on the part of the individual. In every walk of life there are thousands of men and women who cannot succeed because they are trying to do something for which they are not fitted. Poor unfortunates! They waste their lives either because they will not quit, vainly hoping that if they keep on plodding and plugging they will win, or because they know not which way to turn.
The world isn't supported by one man, as the ancients believed. It takes millions of suckers.

Looking Back In Pickaway County FIVE YEARS AGO
Wayne-twp had a population of 587, according to an announcement made by census officials, an increase of 36 in 10 years. Seventy-two farms were listed in the enumeration.
A. L. Wilder, with a net score of 90, won first prize in the Pickaway County club's first blind bogey tournament. His gross total was 125, with a handicap of 35.
Harry McCrady died at his home in Washington-twp. He was born in Circleville in 1863.
15 YEARS AGO
The body of a newly-born girl baby, with its throat cut, was found hanging in the lower branches of bushes along the Hocking river east of Lancaster. Authorities believed it had been thrown from a passing vehicle.
Superintendent of Public Instruction V. M. Reigel addressed a meeting at the high school auditorium, discussing the latest rulings of the tax commission on the new school laws and salaries of teachers.
The annual inspection of the Masonic bodies was held, with a large number of visitors from neighboring lodges in attendance.

GYPSY GIRL
THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE
McDONALD READER
CHAPTER 40
YES, CONSUELO had informed the two newspaper men that she was to succeed Louise D'ville as star of the Follies tonight. Was it madness—madness from this dream of hers?
"Congratulations, gypsy!" shouted the reporters. "Gosh, we've been writing stories about you ever since you got here, but this is the best one yet. In a few short weeks you have done what others have worked years to accomplish. Old Man Luck has surely walked with you, gypsy."
"Old Man Luck—I wonder why you call it that. It is not luck that you dream a dream and that the dream becomes more real than life itself until everything but it is swept away. It is not luck that makes you say this impossible thing is possible." She caught her breath. This impossible thing is possible, she thought, I wonder, oh God, I wonder if this impossible thing is possible!
"Mr. Goldberg will give it out to the other newspapers later," the words almost choked her.
"What about L'ville?"
There was a moment's hesitation. "She is going to Europe, to Italy, to somewhere I don't know."
"How come you got the break on this?"
She did not know how to answer them, so instead she smiled vaguely. One of the men winked at her.
"I saw you with him last night. Fast work, gypsy, fast work." At the alarm on her face, he added: "Needn't worry, I won't write it up and so there's a dramatic critic and isn't concerned with such choice bits. Everybody's got to have somebody behind her to get along in this racket, so don't you worry, just thank your lones that you've picked on one of the big boys that can get you some place, and not one of the little fry with a lot of empty promises. At that, D'ville was one of the first men on the job, and he's a Blackie man, so we might have tied it up before we'd used our heads. Good work. Keep it up and you'll be the biggest hit Broadway ever had. They'll pack the house tonight with this out in the afternoon papers."
"Gypsy girl takes L'ville's place." New sensation! Call it what you like, it's hot!
"Come along, Jo, let's get this back. Maybe the old man will give us an extra on it, who knows? Good luck, gypsy."
"Thank you."
"Sure, good luck, Consuelo. I'll give you some good wishes on it, and add that the gypsy dancer has brains besides being pretty—that looking into the impossible until it becomes possible—that's good copy." "Knock 'em cold tonight, gypsy!" They were gone.
The girl sank into a chair. Her body was shaking.
Oh, Lord, she thought, what have I done! Now surely he will not do it! Now surely my big talk is wrong and this impossible thing is still impossible! But then again, he promised. He said sometime, and he cannot blame me if I have made the sometime, now! Oh Lord! Oh Lord!
She began to laugh.
Tonight! Tonight! Ah, how I have waited!
You are a fool to think you can get by with this. Louise has her contract. Maybe he will not buy her off, but if he will, maybe he cannot. Maybe this is only a silly trick. The papers will give headlines. What a fool I will be if they say at certain time that it was a mistake and the gypsy will only go on in her two little acts! Oh, no! No! This is life, life itself! Nothing else is worth while. I cannot be wrong. Back to the gypsy camp I could have used a knife or have whispered to Marcu to get rid of this woman for me, but here it is different and so I use this way. What if it fails? What if I am wrong?
No, I cannot be wrong. It is right that I should be star of the Follies. Stewart promised it. If I brought that I am the best dancer New York has ever seen. It is true that I have lived all my life just for this moment. Now I cannot fail! Tonight! Clapping. On! On! Maybe tonight they will throw silver dollars—maybe—maybe.

Ah, now is the magic palace real. Now is my dream come to me. Now! Now!
She closed her eyes and there upon the stage she saw herself and she was dancing in the new costumes that were duplicates of L'ville's, and she was dancing L'ville's dances and singing her songs. Then she was dancing her own dance in the improvised gypsy camp with the Spaniards who were less than dogs. Before her was the little honey bear and she went to him and buried her face against his rugged coat and when she looked back the scene had changed and it was no longer this imitation but the real gypsy camp. She cried out with gladness and ran to the wagons and to the tents, but they were empty. She went to the campfire to wait for him but there was only ashes, no glowing coals to stir to life. And she sat down by the dead bonfire and cried because the gypsies had gone away and left her. Then through the tears she remembered that it was not the gypsies who had left but she who had gone away and deserted them.
"Miss, Mr. Parker is here." Consuelo started up. The camp vanished, but tears were lingering on her eyelashes. She ran to the door and put her arms around Douglas.
"You have not seen me for a long, long time, my friend, and it is good to have you back again."
He held her to him and then pushed her arm's length and looked at her hungrily.
"I feel better already." He followed her into the room and, when he sat down, she perched herself on the arm of his chair. "All right, gypsy, what have you been up to that you call me for a deep and mysterious conference?"
"Nothing—nothing—"
"I suppose you know you're going to have me around again as nursemaid, bodyguard and shock absorber." He punched her cheek. "A clever little baby as ever I met. So you have your sweet papa back again and crawling at your feet and Douglas hollering up a tree."
"Douglas—she was not listening to what he said—Douglas—she ran her fingers through his hair and twisted his ear. "My darling, will you tell me things—"
"Stop twirling and I'll tell you anything, even my heart."
"Douglas, do you think Stewart

THE POET'S DREAM
They said they'd like to go along.
They thought it must be fine to see
Inside a poet's dream, his song,
And watch its golden mystery.
And so they came, by one and two,
They looked and saw, and softly said:
Why, this is just our own come true,
And not so different instead!
The poet set his dream beside
A leafy road, a little hill;
A stream was there with singing tide,
And set it in the hearts of men.
A meadow starred with daisies still.
He set it in a roaring street,
And in a store and in a den;
He set it where the world was sweet,
No wonder when they came to see
It was no different than their own—
No sign of death or mystery—
Just love and life and song alone;
Just simple unpretentious trust
In holiness that from the dust
Can set an April blossom down
Beside some window in a town.

WHAT EVERY WOMAN KNOWS
(Chicago Daily News)
While silly man has been running around the earth hunting for holy grails and fountains of youth, only to stumble upon the oriental rug of trade or the Florida resort racket, woman has known and kept the real secret of the ages.
Like most folklore, science finds likes me now.

"I heard this morning that you had called him an old turtle hiding under a shell of money, and Bluebeard thought it was the cutest thing he'd heard yet, so it must mean he likes you. But you've got something up your gypsy sleeve. Tell Doug."
"Douglas, do you think he likes me well enough to give Louise a lot of money and send her away?"
Doug whistled through his teeth.
"Whoa, baby, whoa, back up. Don't run so fast that you forget what you're running for. Just be content for a while and maybe he will later, who knows?"
Her eyes were dreamy.
"Do you think he would be awfully mad at me if I—"
"Out with it!"
"—If suddenly I was to go on in her place?"
"You're way ahead of me, baby. I don't get you at all."
Apparently she dismissed the subject.
"I must be dressed pretty soon. He is coming to take me to lunch, and for a long drive this afternoon. We will not get back until dinner time. She bit the top of his ear. "Douglas, will you stay around Mr. Goldberg's office this afternoon?"
"What for? I'm still in the fog and besides I can't think when you're doing things to my ear."
"You will promise?"
"Anything, where you're concerned."
"Maybe you could take Stewart's place and say what should be said."
"As clear as mud, but leave it to me to always say what should be said."
"You're a dear. Now will you run along?"
"Right, and return when you whistle and say things for you when I am supposed to say them."
"You are a darling, my Douglas. Tonight, tonight—" There were tears in her eyes.
"Tonight, yes tonight! Is this a date with me, young lady, or are you just mooning about something vague and idealistic?"
She did not answer.
"Well, goodbye baby. Whatever you've got up your sleeve I wish you luck on it. Above all, don't ask for anything less than a town or Stewart is death on roadsters. And don't fight with him again or I'll be taken off the job and have to sell apples on street corners or take Pekingese for walks or else find some nice old lady to keep me in socks and stocks and like me for my self alone. So long and good luck!"
"Good luck! Good luck! Maybe after all it was only good luck or bad luck."

What Body Changes Occur From the Use of Tobacco

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
WHAT IS the physiologic action of tobacco? What changes occur in the body to make smokers get so much comfort out of it? In answering these questions, from the scientific point of view we meet a paradox at the very beginning.
Nicotine, which is the chief ingredient of tobacco, is an extremely vigorous poison. Two drops of nicotine placed on the tongue or rubbed into the gums of a dog or cat will produce death in one or two minutes. In man, death has followed the use of the nicotine of a sound with a quid of tobacco to stop bleeding. The injection of nicotine into the intestine for the relief of worms has been followed by death.
A tobacco smoker, however, gets very little nicotine into his system. The best grades of tobacco are by no means those which have the highest amount of nicotine. It is probable that the nicotine is volatilized or destroyed largely by the heat, and that the smoke which is taken into the system contains only a very small percentage of the drug. This must be so or there would be many deaths, even when tolerance is established, from the amount of smoking that we do.
Not Settled Habit
Another fact about tobacco as a drug is that it is far from a settled habit. The most complete example of a drug habit is that of the morphine addict. A morphine addict cannot stop the use of the drug whether he is sick or well, under any circumstances, without help or without great suffering. No such events occur to tobacco users. Everyone is familiar with the fact that if he has a slight illness, such as a cold, he stops the use of tobacco without any discomfort whatever. I, myself, in London once began to get an irregularity of the pulse from those murderous English cigars and stopped smoking for six months. I cannot remember to have had a single minute's discomfort or the slightest desire to resume the habit. This is also borne out by the experience of many people for whom smoking aggravates attacks of angina, and who give it up abruptly without any desire to return to it.
All of this leads to the supposition that a great deal of the pleasure of smoking is sensuous and psychic. In other words, it comes from the stimulation of smell and taste, and the habit of having something to do with the hands and lips.
Some Reaction Noted
Tobacco, however, even as ordinarily used, does have certain physiological reactions. Some of these were described in the article yesterday. There is no question that it has an elective effect on the small arteries of the heart and the limbs, causing them to go into spasm. Indeed, one of the few diseases that is ascribed to tobacco is that of spasm of the arteries of the leg, resulting in poor circulation and even gangrene.
Another bad result of tobacco is in tobacco amblyopia, or blindness. These cases usually clear up after the tobacco has been stopped.
Summarizing, we feel that tobacco does little harm except in a few cases, but the habit is easy to stop, if necessary, and its effects are almost entirely functional. It is generally agreed that adolescents should not smoke, as it has more deleterious effects on the young man than on the old, and that the proper time to begin to smoke is the time when one casts the first vote.

IT'S ODD
Kind Gent—"Do you know what happened to little boys who have a quiet smoke," they get smoke?"
Small Boy—"Yes, I do. Why every time they go anywhere to have a quiet smoke," they get bothered by rude old men."

ELEMENTARY FACTS
ELEMENTARY facts are required to properly start beginners and new readers. Twenty years' intimate acquaintance and daily play with leading experts shows me how prompt these men are to adopt the best discovered means of rendering every feature of their game most efficient. Each master expert has something to teach to, and something to learn from, each of his peers. Let us say, as each automobile manufacturer has, Authors of bridge books and claimants of special systems of bidding, like automobile salesmen, pick out important features as "talking points," to sell their goods, particularly to novices. Wise car owners and bridge players alike disregard professional sales patter, knowing that a master craftsman's product will give them only the best of everything. Drivers and players taking these facts to heart avoid the shackles of system fetishes which hamper progress for most of the narrower minded. Systems are mere crutches to support the halting until they gather courage to act without them.
The greatest educator is the daily paper's bridge article, written by an expert. These articles carry the intelligent reader through every phase of the game, as actually encountered by the writer and his associates. To benefit most by these articles the reader must prepare to understand them, by learning "the alphabet of bridge." Neither the editor nor the bridge writer is supposed to teach the letters of the alphabet to a reader. The alphabet of bridge may be learned from "The Laws of Contract Bridge," while an elementary bridge text-book gives valuation of hands, an outline of sound bidding and the opening leads. Unless otherwise specified in the text relating to bidding, on the diagrams accompanying these articles, South is the dealer, having the first opportunity to bid. If of the least importance to the reader the text shows the score and whether either side is vulnerable.
Each article presents the salient features of some phase of the game which no text-book has space to embrace. Daily reading and practice soon place a player at any location on a footing enjoyed by members of leading card clubs in our greatest cities, just as the general news items keep the lonely forest dweller posted on what is taking place all over the world.

BIRDS VICTORS 9 TO 5 OVER LOUISVILLE 9

League Race Bunched; Pitching of Peters Furnished Ohio State Thrill

COLUMBUS, O., April 20.—The Columbus Red Birds posted a 9 to 5 victory over the Louisville Colonels in the American Association pennant chase today while the second AA team in Ohio, the Toledo Mud Hens, proved themselves consistent losers by dropping their fourth game in as many starts this season.

As a result of dropping a 6 to 2 verdict to the Indianapolis Indians yesterday, the Mud Hens became further mired in the league cellar. Their record to date this season is four defeats and no wins.

Columbus by beating Louisville helped St. Paul to go into a first place tie with the Colonels. The Red Birds, Indianapolis and Milwaukee are in a three way tie behind the leaders.

COLUMBUS, April 20.—The baseball teams of Ohio State and Michigan, arch rivals of the Big Ten, were to clash on the diamond again here today after the Bucks took the first game of the two-tit series yesterday, 3 to 2, behind the splendid one-hit pitching of Ronnie Peters.

The game was closely played, with Ohio's hits limited to six by Fatchin, Wolverine pitcher, Peters walked eight men but he was steady in the pinches and drove in the winning run with a single after Mosier had doubled into right.

Peters is a sophomore but already is being baited by big league scouts offering contracts.

FOXX IS BETTER THAN COCHRANE, CLAIMS MANAGER

NEW YORK, April 20.—Jimmy Foxx is just as good a catcher as Mickey Cochrane.

Who says so? Connie Mack, who raised them both.

"Yes," said the oldest leader of the A's today, "Jimmy is as good a catcher ever was. He can do everything Mickey never did and do it just as well. What's more, Jimmy is a better catcher than he ever was a first baseman. Jimmy is just as fast behind the plate. He handles the pitchers perfectly and he can coach and steady and teach them just as well as Mickey. I take nothing away from Mickey. He's a wonder but so is Jimmy. The only difference is, Mickey had a lot of talk but in all sincerity, he has nothing on Jimmy."

"And don't overlook this little item—Jimmy will outlast him."

About This And That

BY THE
SECOND GUESSER

Reds Going On

These amazing Cincinnati Reds have started to go places in a big way—Silas Johnson, former Columbus hurler, stopped the Cubs with nothing at all Friday, the Redlegs copping 4 to 0—Lew Riggs, the lapping youth who played at Columbus once upon a time, continues to hold down third base in fine style—In the four Red games played to date, three have been victories, he has hit safely in all—He has committed only one error, that in the first game and it cost two runs.

Myers Delivering

Captain Billy Myers, who sets a precedent by giving the field leader's assignment in his first year in the big show, is also playing great ball—So are Jim Bottomley and Chick Hefey, a couple of veterans of whom you've read before.

McKain Is Clubbed

The Red Birds chased a jinx, Friday, driving Archie McKain, sterling Louisville hurler to the showers with a big assault—Pat Ankenman, who is even smaller than Tippy Dye—believe it or not—led the Red Bird attack with three blows—Louisville's club, however, is tough and will not prove setups to anyone in this man's league.

Howell Is Minors

Dixie Howell, who stopped a ball in batting practice with his cranium, is now a member of the Birmingham, Ala. club, optioned by the Tigers—'Tis again mightily nice golfing weather so you can expect many to be on the Country club course Sunday afternoon—The layout is in fine shape and many have been taking advantage whenever possible—Still haven't learned anything definite about the pro Charlie Gilmore is studying about hiring—The feat of Ronnie Peters, sophomore right hander, who set the Michigan team down with one hit Friday, is being praised by Ohio State base-

MOUND FEATS FEATURE TWO LEAGUE RACES

Rookies Stop Two Clubs While Young First Sacker Smacks Giant Hurlers

NEW YORK, April 20.—With one rookie pitching a one-hit shut-out against the champion Cardinals, another turning in a six-hit victory over the champion Tigers and a third youngster getting four homers in two plays, it might be well to hold up all prognostications, predictions and prophecies until further returns are in.

Cy Blanton was the lad who raised pennant hopes high in Pittsburgh when he held the slugger Cards to a lone single by old Virgil Davis. While Cy was turning on the heat to the amazement of Frisch & Co., his buddies were getting to Bill Hallahan for three runs.

Whitehead, Also

Johnny Whitehead, a Texas rookie, was the lad who set the Tigers down 3 to 2 for the edification of the White Sox. He, too, would have had a shutout but for the fact that he thought he might come down the middle with a fast one against Charley Gehring. When anybody tries that, the ball usually goes for a long, long ride. However, Johnny must have something between the ears for it is to be noted he didn't try again.

Dolph Camilli, the Philly first baseman, was the third youngster to make the oldsters sit up and take notice. Dolph peeled off five hits, including the aforesaid brace of homers, against Giant pitching, thus which there is supposed to be nothing finer. The Giant pitching must have turned sour lately and 22 hits of assorted shapes and sizes and an 18 to 7 beating will attest.

It's been many a moon since any team maltreated the Giants in that fashion. Such treatment by the Phillies is nothing less, than less majestic and Bill Terry, probably will take steps.

The rookies were good indeed yesterday but they didn't hog all the limelight. Up Boston way, Lefty Clark, assaying a comeback after two dismal years, trimmed the Braves, 4 to 2, despite a couple of singles—hardly worth mentioning—by Babe Ruth.

Taylor Clubs

There was in the morning as part of a Patriot's day celebration. After lunch, the Dodgers, repeated by the same score, with Johnny Babich operating. Danny Taylor settled this one early by hitting a homer with the bases fully represented.

Lefty Grove, whose case closely parallels Clark's, got credit for a 10 to 4 victory over the Senators but he was touched up rather freely and had to get help from Rube Walberg. The jury is still out in Grove's case.

Betrothed

Whitney Straight (inset), 22-year-old American millionaire, is expanding his career as racing auto driver in Europe to marry Lady Daphne Finch-Hatton, 21, British-American heiress (above). Later's grandfather was Anthony Drexel of Philadelphia.

REDS CLIMB TO PINNACLE

Drop Cubs 4 to 0 While Entering Tie for Lead With Brooklyn Club

CHICAGO, April 20.—In a tie for first place in the National League, the Cincinnati Reds today were proving themselves one of the wonder teams of the 1935 major league baseball season after snatching their victory of the season, 4 to 0, at the expense of the Chicago Cubs yesterday.

The Reds dropped the opening game of their campaign to Pittsburgh but won the next two from the Pirates and then turned in the Cub win yesterday, their second outburst in as many days. Brooklyn also had won three and lost one and rides temporarily with Cincinnati in the first berth.

Cincinnati gave Si Johnson, its pitcher, wonderful support to earn the triumph yesterday while Gully Camilli, a former Cub now wearing the catchers mask for the Reds, piled a homer against his former teammates, Lee and Root, of the "hurdle" for the locals.

The Cubs and the Reds were to tangle again today.

Peters is the boy who starred on the basketball court with a class B team a couple of years ago—About 15 schools were after him but Ohio State landed him—Regeci, the boy who boots that ball high and far on the gridiron for the Wolverines, touched Peters for the only hit.

would be a secondary matter in her flight, she expected to reach Mexico City within 12 hours.

Miss Earhart said she expected to send her 250-horsepower, Warp-motored plane through the air at a speed of between 140 and 150 miles per hour during the flight, which is 1,700 miles, on the course she is traveling.

Tests New Compass

Tests of a new radio compass which was installed in the plane yesterday by Paul Mantz, who prepared Miss Earhart's ship for its recent trans-Pacific solo flight, were the primary reason for the date the flyer said.

The new compass, it was said, was developed by William P. Lear and Miss Earhart said she is making the tests at the request of the United States Department of Commerce.

Just before leaving Miss Earhart revealed that while the trip to Mexico City was not made with the intention of seeking to establish a speed record she would attempt a record flight from Mexico City to New York after her plane is serviced at Mexico City.

other thing, has encouraged me in my work. I tried hard at all times to justify this public confidence.

"It has been a long and hard journey and I feel, and I believe the public does also, that my administration has been a successful one. I have given my very best in my more than 30 years in prison work and I am glad I have been able to render this service."

Elated at yesterday's turn in developments, Paul M. Herbert, attorney for Thomas declared his belief that the evidence at the civil service commission hearing on the ouster charges against the warden "was so piling up in favor of Mr. Thomas that no tribunal could fairly decide against the warden."

Reversal Decision

"Realizing that it would be of embarrassment to the administration to have the warden reinstated," he said, "Governor Davey took the action he did, completely reversing his decision of more than a month ago."

Thomas will remain on the state's civil service list for a year and will be eligible for a pension of more than $1,000 a year if the legislature enacts the pending retirement measure favoring state employees.

SUMMER SESSION FOR LAW SCHOOL

COLUMBUS, April 20.—For the first time in 44 years, Ohio State university's college of law will conduct a summer session this year.

With the introduction of the summer sessions, it will be possible for a student to complete the three-year law course by taking three summer sessions and two regular years of work.

Three other courses not offered in the regular school year are listed for the summer session. They cover the subjects of insurance, income, inheritance and estate taxation, and federal procedure.

DENY KAISER ILL

AMSTERDAM, April 20.—The Doorn household of former Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany today denied a published report that he was seriously ill.

The exiled ruler, "is quite fit," reported by William P. Lear and Miss Earhart said she is making the tests at the request of the United States Department of Commerce.

Just before leaving Miss Earhart revealed that while the trip to Mexico City was not made with the intention of seeking to establish a speed record she would attempt a record flight from Mexico City to New York after her plane is serviced at Mexico City.

"DOGS IN UPTOWN FIGHT"

An "Main-street" fight scene of excitement Saturday morning when two dogs, apparently with no love for each other, engaged in a battle. The fight took place in front of Brunner's and was interesting until Johnny McGinnis pulled his dog away from another.

'Twas exciting for a while.

ed Evangelical church met in their banquet hall on Thursday afternoon, April 18th, with Mrs. Lena Bockwalter, Mrs. Pearl Maag, Mrs. Clara Bookwalter, Mrs. Gail Strettenberger and Mrs. Grace Dreisbach as hostesses.

At the roll call thirty-five members and a large number of visitors were found present about one hundred twenty-five in all. The next meeting will be held on the regular date in the banquet hall.

The community was saddened this week to learn of the death of Rev. Park H. Weaver of Tiffin, O. Mr. Weaver was former pastor of the Reformed church but at the time of his death and for the past fifteen years was a field worker in the State Welfare Department in Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. James Forquer, recently purchased a new model Chevrolet four-doors, from the Metzger company.

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Europe's Confab M a z e Due to British Cabinet Split Over Aiding France

WASHINGTON—The inside on Europe's hectic peace conferring—as received in confidential reports here—is that there is a split within the British Cabinet as to how strongly Britain should support France. Ramsay MacDonald and Sir John Simon are for pious platitudes. Stanley Baldwin would go much further in giving the French genuine armed support against Germany—if necessary. Because it is always difficult to promise anything definite in international relations, the preachers of piety have won. S. D. Hall, granddaughter of the President, no longer likes to be called by her nickname. She prefers the more dignified title of "Eleanor," after her grandmother. Her grandmother, incidentally, is giving enthusiastic support to a young New Dealer who is writing a movie on the New Deal. He has persuaded Hollywood producers that there would be real drama in filming the CCC, TVA, Subsidized Homesteads and many other New Deal projects.

Ultimatum

Senate liberals have formulated the following demands as the price of their support for renewal of the NRA: Codification to be limited strictly to interstate industries; anti-trust curbs to be written into the act; and price fixing to be prohibited except for natural resource industries (coal, copper, lumber). In these cases the Federal Trade Commission is to be required to pass on the prices fixed. The liberals have notified Administration leaders that the Richberg bill which contains none of these provisions cannot be passed and that unless their demands are met there will be no NRA legislation. On the desk of Oklahoma's booted, loud-talking Representative Percy Gassaway is of copy of Huey Long's book, "Every Man a King." On top of the book is a miniature bull with long horns. Word has reached Washington that California's bald, beefy Governor Merriam considers himself a likely Republican presidential possibility next year. Appraisal of the news, Senate Republican Floor Leader Charles McNary remarked: "It must be the climate."

Come and Get it

Much wise-cracking is to be heard at Capital dinner tables over the fact that an enterprising Yucatan, Mexico, lawyer has circularized New Deal officials offering his services in obtaining "quick and inexpensive" divorces. Currency Controller "Jeffy" O'Connor's proclivity for personal publicity has been quietly curbed by his Treasury superiors. Press releases from his office must now pass before the scrutinizing eye of the Treasury's press chief.

BETTER MARKET PRICES SOUGHT

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 20—Construction of community grading and processing plants for the small farmer is an idea being developed by J. B. McLaughlin, state agricultural commissioner for presentation to the state planning board.

These plants would grade eggs, fruit and vegetables for several growers, enabling them to obtain better market prices, McLaughlin said. He suggested that 100 plants could be used to good advantage throughout the state.

A church reverses God's order when it lets spiritual paralysis creep in after it has observed Easter.

SOLON ASKED TO VOTE FOR OPTION

URBANA, April 20.—A petition circulated by the W. C. T. U. urging him to vote for the Grubbs local option bill pending in the legislature has been sent to Rep. W. P. VanNess.

The petition declares belief that the county unit method of dealing with the liquor traffic is practicable and that the majority of legal voters in each county should have the right to say whether or not the legal sale of liquor shall be permitted therein.

"If this bill becomes law the dry forces of Urbana and Champaign-co will unite in circulating a petition asking for a local option vote in this county whenever we think the time is ready," said Miss Stella Thornburg, W. C. T. U. president. "This county is normally dry and we are confident of victory if we can force the issue to a vote."

Discovery Made at "Fountain of Youth" Site

Evidence of the race whose hardness may have inspired the "Fountain of Youth" legend which drew Ponce de Leon to Florida, has been dug up in burial ground of members of the race who lived at the time Ponce de Leon discovered Florida on Easter Sunday, 1513. Burial ground is located near spring identified with the Spanish explorer (inset) in legend, at St. Augustine, Fla. Photos show replica of Indian ceremonial lodge erected over site, and some of the graves uncovered. These Indian graves are of special interest to archeologists because they give indications of Christian burial customs.

WHAT OF THE OTHER FIVE DIONNE CHILDREN?

With the famous Dionne quintuplets made "wards of the Dominion" and living in a specially built hospital, what of the five older Dionne children, Rose, Ernest, the oldest, nine, Therese, Daniel and little Pauline, two, to whom her older sister, Rose, acts as little mother. Writing for a national magazine, Mary Dougherty says the children are frankly puzzled about the attention bestowed upon the five tiny sisters, who will soon be celebrating their first birthday. Ernest is devoted to his dog, Rover. "When the quintuplets begin piling up the fortune that assuredly will be theirs, will the other Dionne children find themselves shoved more and more rudely into the background?" asks Miss Dougherty. "Is there a possibility that they will become victims of such inferiority complexes that their lives will be void of accomplishment, even of meaning?"

Territorial Change

Big Bolivia and little Paraguay are likely to reverse positions in size, with Paraguay extending its successful recapture of long disputed Chaco region to conquest of Beni and Santa Cruz departments, or states, of Bolivia. Territory of President Jose Luis Tejada Sorzano (top), Bolivian president, would shrink, and that of Dr. Eusebio Ayala (below), Paraguayan president, expand.

OUR YESTERDAYS— When Cleveland Won the Election But Harrison Won the Presidency

MANY PEOPLE believe that the man who receives the largest number of votes in a presidential election wins the office. That is not so. It can happen, and it has happened, that a candidate winning a smaller number of popular votes than an opponent can be elected to the presidency. This is best illustrated in the election of 1888, in which Grover Cleveland received 5,540,956 votes, and Benjamin Harrison received only 5,447,327. But Harrison was elected because the popular votes had won for him 401 electoral votes while Cleveland secured only 183 electoral votes. This is possible because of the fact that a majority usually carries with it the entire electoral vote of a state. The number of votes makes no difference as long as there is a majority. Harrison was known as a "minority president" because he was elected with a minority of popular votes.

THE CAMERA REVEALS INTERESTING HAPPENINGS

Discovery Made at "Fountain of Youth" Site

Burial ground is located near spring identified with the Spanish explorer (inset) in legend, at St. Augustine, Fla. Photos show replica of Indian ceremonial lodge erected over site, and some of the graves uncovered. These Indian graves are of special interest to archeologists because they give indications of Christian burial customs.

WHAT OF THE OTHER FIVE DIONNE CHILDREN?

With the famous Dionne quintuplets made "wards of the Dominion" and living in a specially built hospital, what of the five older Dionne children, Rose, Ernest, the oldest, nine, Therese, Daniel and little Pauline, two, to whom her older sister, Rose, acts as little mother. Writing for a national magazine, Mary Dougherty says the children are frankly puzzled about the attentions bestowed upon the five tiny sisters, who will soon be celebrating their first birthday. Ernest is devoted to his dog, Rover. "When the quintuplets begin piling up the fortune that assuredly will be

MANY PEOPLE believe that the man who receives the largest number of votes in a presidential election wins the office. That is not so. It can happen, and it has happened, that a candidate winning a smaller number of popular votes than an opponent can be elected to the presidency. This is best illustrated in the election of 1888, in which Grover Cleveland received 5,540,050 votes and Benjamin Harrison received only 5,441,327. Harrison was elected because the popular votes had won for him 401 electoral votes while Cleveland secured only 168 electoral votes. This is possible because of the fact that a majority usually carries with it the entire electoral vote of a state. The number of votes makes no difference as long as there is a majority. Harrison was known as a "minority president" because he was elected with a minority of popular votes.
